Prof. Qi Zhu

Famous Scholar and Writer
Graduated from Peking University in 1990 with PhD degree in Chinese literature, currently teaching Chinese language at Stanford University. Prof. Zhu is well-known for his lecture series on Chinese culture. He was the winner of a few high-profile literature awards in Mainland China and Taiwan.

Topic: Traditional Culture and Modern Chinese

What's the impact of Chinese traditional culture on the development of modern China in the past 100 years? What are the main characteristics of the Chinese traditional culture? What's its role in future China, and even in the future world?

Prof. Zhu will try to answer a very important question: as a modern Chinese, what should we keep and what should we get rid of in our traditional culture.
